

Quakers Report

So JYM was an experience but definitely a good one. I made so many friends from different walks of life with various aspects of what religion is and what it means to them.

The weekend started off by being very exciting. I was a little lost at first but I fitted in well which I was glad about because I was worried that I wouldn't fit in well and that I would stick out like a sore thumb but being called the religious society of friends it's almost impossible to not fit in.

At the yearly meeting, they were discussing about whether or not they should re-write the Quaker faith and Practice. The meeting was done in silence and every time you wanted to speak you had to ask to minister, I found this really different.

The worship was another thing I really enjoyed, a chance to be one with God and listen to what my sub-conscious self was telling me. They did a meditation and it was actually the first time I've ever felt really, truly connected to God. It was odd.

All in all it was an amazing experience and I would one hundred percent go and experience it again.
